Addition of Strategic Decision Sciences USA expands Wescorp's ability to deliver solutions for optimizing oil and gas operations

HOUSTON, Texas, and CALGARY, Alberta (Monday, September 24, 2007)—Wescorp Energy Inc. (OTCBB: WSCE), an oil and gas operations solutions company, has completed the company's merger with Strategic Decision Sciences USA Inc. (SDS), a Houston-based engineering firm providing process-driven consulting and services to help oil and gas operators improve the management, economics and environmental performance of field operations.

"Wescorp Energy has a clear vision for bringing new capabilities to the oil and gas industry," said Wescorp President and CEO Doug Biles. "We are expanding our current products and services to provide and deliver solutions for tough real-world operations challenges, specifically in the areas of gas metering and measurement, environmental compliance, unconventional oil and gas, and field intelligence."

Together, Wescorp Energy and SDS bring to market in-depth industry experience, extensive knowledge of oil and gas workflows, operations and engineering best practices, and a deep understanding of industry economics. Those capabilities, combined with the unique NAVIGATOR process management solution developed by SDS, help Wescorp reduce costs, save time and optimize field operations for its oil- and gas-field customers worldwide.

"Wescorp is capitalizing on opportunities to deliver unique and new technology-driven solutions to some of the industry's top operators and service companies," said Scott Shemwell, Wescorp Energy Chief Operating Officer. "We are now actively marketing operations and maintenance (O&M) solutions to producers in all of the major areas of operation in North America's upstream oil and gas industry, including deep water Gulf of Mexico, Canadian tar sands, mid-continental shale gas fields and Permian Basin gas operations. "
